RITE INSTRUCTOR

2-DAY PROGRAM

COURSE OVERVIEW

Some of the 35,000 decisions we make every day are, deciding what to eat, what to wear, what to say, and how we'll say it. Our brains are on the go from the moment we wake up. The fact is, about 90% of the decisions Officer's make, are based on emotions... and emotions always WIN over logic.

The benefit of emotional intelligence officer training is in learning how to utilize it in the community. When using tactics of influence, emotional intelligence provides solid groundwork for successful engagement.

RITE Training focuses on how to use Emotional Responses to successfully manage the behavior of others. Officers often encounter volatile situations, and their response can either help it, or escalate it. Maintaining control over our emotions, especially in today's policing, is critical.

Emotional health issues are a known risk to an officer's health and well-being. This training is a MUST for every first responder.
